

"WETS" LOST BITTER FIGHT IN ILLINOIS SENATE

SECOND HALF OF "WE" CALLING TO PLUCKY LINDY

Hero Pilot Anxious to Get Back to Spirit of St. Louis

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Through a long schedule of more receptions and dinners to its hero pilot the other half of the flying team of "we" today called to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Balked by inclement weather in an attempt to fly to Washington yesterday, the youthful colonel on the third day welcome in New York hoped to steal if possible a few hours from his program for a flight to the capital and reunion with the craft that carried him to international glory. He was honored by 3,500 guests at a municipal banquet in the Hotel Commodore and attended the theater last night. His program today called for his appearances from noon until after midnight.

Lindbergh buried his thoughts of his plane, in the hands of strangers, in a strange hangar at Bolling Field, while the city continued its showers of honors upon him last night.

"The Outstanding Figure," He was introduced by Mayor Walker as "the outstanding figure in the civilized world." He sat with Governor Smith, Charles Evans Hughes, Cardinal Hayes, Bishop Manning and other dignitaries of almost every calling.

Lindbergh said that the next big step in transatlantic communication by air would be that of multi-motored planes. "I believe they will start to demonstrate their possibilities in a very short time," he declared.

Two policemen were seated in front of the floor to shield him from enthusiastic guests and autograph seekers. In the lobby a hundred policemen directed traffic while 400 officers on foot and on horse back controlled milling thousands in the streets outside the hotel.

Forced to Make Speech. During the theater performance Lindbergh was presented a gold pass admitting him to any of the Shubert Theaters in America and Europe. A spotlight was thrown on the colonel as he arose from his place in the box to speak. "I will not take much of your time," he said. "You would rather see the show than hear me talk."

Cries of "no, no" and "tell us how you did it" were heard.

Lindbergh said his reception in New York exceeded all his expectations and then he settled himself and apparently enjoyed the show.

His main engagement today was a joint luncheon of the Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Astor at 12:30 p. m. Tonight he is to attend a boxing bout in the Polo Grounds.

Plans call for Mrs. Lindbergh's departure for St. Louis in a special car with a party of friends at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Lindbergh took the morning off in bed. He slept soundly after a busy night of entertainment.

Waiting to see the aviator when he arose was a delegation of four boyhood playmates from Little Falls, Minn., the town in which he grew up. These friends, who call him "Charlie," motored east in an "old home town" car and plan to stay in New York until the colonel leaves, probably on Friday.

WON'T SEE PLANE.

Mitchell Field, N. Y., June 15.—(AP)—Officers at the army air field make known today that New Yorkers will probably not see Col. Lindbergh's plane, the Spirit of St. Louis before the flier returns home.

They said that present plans call for Lindbergh to leave here for Washington in an army pursuit plane Friday morning immediately after receiving the $25,000 Orteig prize at a presentation breakfast in New York. At Washington he will transfer to the "Spirit" and thence fly to St. Louis arriving there late Friday afternoon according to schedule.

It is also necessary to place upon the ballot the estimated maximum cost of each proposed site, and the Board has proceeded very carefully with this phase of the preparation. In order that the estimated cost would be as nearly accurate as possible, the board asked a committee of real estate men, familiar with land values and with sale prices of property in Dixon, to furnish this estimate. Votes to Adhere to Its Scheme of Concrete Pavement There

A very interesting session of the board of local improvements of the city was held last evening at the close of a brief session of the council, which was attended by almost a hundred citizens. The occasion marked the public hearing under local improvement ordinance No. 232, which provides for the paving with cement of several blocks of north side streets. The majority of the property owners present favored the improvement and asked that the council construct the cement type of paving.

R. A. Rodesch headed a delegation which was bitterly opposed to the cement type and asked that the tarvia type of construction be installed. The meeting for a time revolved itself into a debate on the two types of construction and several letters were read from Illinois cities condemning the tarvia type as expensive and unfitted for heavy traffic. Mayor Palmer called attention to the fact that the purpose of the meeting was to decide whether or not the improvement should be made and not a discussion as to types of paving.

Warm Discussion.

R. A. Rodesch called on a few property owners to substantiate his plea for tarvia and notified the board of local improvements that he had secured the services of a road construction expert who would address the assembly, and called on the speaker, but the visitor did not have an opportunity to present his case. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Rodesch, who was warming up to his subject, stated that a certain lady property owner had informed him that she desired tarvia type of paving.

At this point the woman whom he named arose and pointing a finger directly at the speaker, informed him in no mild terms that she had never talked to him upon that or any other subject and that as the owner of considerable property along the line of the proposed improvement she desired the cement type of permanent street and had always been of this opinion. With the council chamber in an uproar, the property owner demanded an apology which was immediately forth coming and as soon as the ovation ceased, the discussion as to type of paving also terminated. The board then adhered to the scheme which provided for cement paving.

NIGHT AND DAY LABOR OF FARMS THROUGHOUT ILL.

Making Great Attempt to Overcome Late Spring Season

Springfield, Ill., June 15.—(AP)—Farmers in Illinois worked tractors day and night last week to overcome the handicap of a late season and get corn land plowed, the United States Weather Bureau crop bulletin issued here announced today.

"It was the best week of the season for field work," the bulletin said, "excellent progress was made in plowing and corn planting. There are reports of corn being weedy, but in the northern division some cultivation was accomplished. The condition of winter wheat is largely good in the northern areas where it is heading, varies much in the central and is only fair in the south where there is considerable rust."

"Oats are spotted, but they made good progress during the week. They are heading in the central counties. Meadows and pastures average good; there was some haying. Apples are dropping in the west-central commercial orchards, the result of an April frost and continued wet weather preventing proper pollination."

To Send Plane to Search for Missing Frenchmen

Quebec, June 15.—(AP)—Despite the possibility that distress signals seen Sunday night in the St. Germain township might have been the lights of a surveying party rather than signals from the missing French aviators, Captains Charles Nungesser and Francois Coll, preliminary arrangements were made here today to send a hydroplane to the region.

Searching parties from St. Germain have already started into the region where the flares were seen in an effort to clear up the matter.

New York, June 15.—(AP)—It cost the city of New York $16,000 to clean up 1,800 tons of waste paper and confetti thrown upon the streets during the welcome to Col. Lindbergh on Monday. Street cleaning department officials smiled grimly when they recalled today that the police had issued a solemn warning that it was against the law to throw papers from the windows.

VETERAN EDITOR OWES LINDBERGH MILLION DOLLARS

Gives Editors in Omaha Convention Laugh in Statement

Omaha, Neb., June 15.—(AP)—After two days of programs, business meetings, receptions and automobile tours, delegates to the 42nd annual convention of the National Editorial Association here convened this morning, facing a day that began with the awarding of national prizes, that included election of officers and selection of the 1928 convention city and that at midnight will see them off on their post convention tour.

The tour will include a journey to the Black Hills of South Dakota where near Rapid City on June 18 the editors will be received by President Coolidge.

Selected as the newspaper which in 1926 performed the greatest community service, the Clinton County Republican-News, St. Johns, Mich., was awarded the silver loving cup offered annually by Editor and Publisher.

In his address last night, Ed Howe, founder of the Atchison, Kansas, Globe, said he worried about a million dollars which he owes Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Tells of Promise

Seventeen years ago when the idea of flying across the Atlantic was considered preposterous, he said, "I wrote that whenever anyone makes a flight across the Atlantic he should come to the Globe office and collect a million dollars."

Mr. Howe said he had forgotten the rash promise until several days ago when someone reminded him of it.

"That I'm going to pay, just like young Vanderbilt is going to pay his debts," the veteran editor chuckled. "You see I'm writing my autobiography and if it makes me a million then I'll pay Lindbergh."

There isn't a man in the world who can do more to stabilize the restlessness of the world today than the editor of the small town newspaper, Rev. R. L. Smith, Minneapolis, told the editors. "We have enough Chicago, New York, Boston and Omaha," the minister continued. "What we need today is more of our great small towns. And I know of no person who can do more to make the small towns great than the editors."

Actor Got Poison by Mistake: Dead

Centerville, Ill., June 15.—(AP)—George Curtis, principal owner of the Curtis Stock Company, playing an engagement at a local theater, died at a hospital here last night from the effects of drinking poison, which is presumed to have been taken accidentally.

According to reports from police headquarters, Curtis, late in the afternoon went to a local jewelry store where he had acquaintances and asked for a drink of water. He was directed by the manager to the water tank in the rear of the store. According to the official reports, the manager stated that the poison was in a glass and the solution was being used from time to time in cleaning jewelry.

No one saw Curtis drink the poison but upon asking the manager what was in the glass, the latter at once summoned a physician but efforts to save Curtis' life were unavailing.

FURTHER TERROR IN RUSSIA WITH DEATHS: RUMORS

Censorship Preventing Confirmation from Reliable Source

London, June 15.—(AP)—Rumors of a new terror in Russia with numerous summary executions, wholesale arrests, drastic military preparations, an impending declaration of martial law and crowds of foreigners fleeing from Moscow, are current in London.

They emanate from Warsaw, Riga and other centers which are notoriously given to circulating anti-Soviet reports and whether they are based on facts could not be substantiated today from any independent reliable source.

It is said that a strict censorship imposed on all telegrams from Russia accounts for the inability to confirm the sensational stories which tell, among other things of "mass executions" in many parts of the union of Soviet socialist republics.

A crowd waved its greeting to the President from Elkton, first station in South Dakota. Similar greetings were waiting at the other small towns and shortly after breakfast Senator Norbeck of South Dakota and a delegation of more than 30 citizens from the eastern part of the state boarded the train to extend the first official welcome.

At Huron, the first extended stop was made and here again the station was jammed by those of the city and nearby countryside who wished to see the President.

Sees Wide Prairies.

A touch of the prairies and the old time was unfolded itself to the President today as he neared his summer residence. He sat with Mrs. Coolidge in the rear car of his long special train and saw stretching into the far off horizon fields sown in wheat and corn.

The President was traveling through the heart of that country where the folks he saw and the folks who came to see him were those desirous for farm relief were embodied in the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill.

Shortly after sun rise the President's train entered the state which will be his host this summer and at noon he was to receive an official welcome at its capital, Pierre, from Governor Bulow and other state officers.

Sheriff James Pritchard of Franklin county who sought Birger here Saturday for safe keeping agreed to the change. Crowded conditions of the Sangamon county jail here were given as reason.

The trip to Bloomington started at 8:30 o'clock. Birger was taciturn. Sheriff James Kent of Sangamon county and two deputies were well armed, but their prisoner was not even handcuffed. Those who have known him say he has lost his former bravado.

GRAND JURY CONVENED

Marion, Ill., June 15.—(AP)—The Williamson county grand jury was convened in special session today to return indictments in the slaying of Lory L. Price, state highway patrolman, and his wife, Ethel, who were abducted by gangsters from their home at Marion, the night of last January 17.

State's Attorney Arlie O. Boswell announced both killings would be considered by the grand jury as he has evidence both persons were shot to death in this county. The body of Mrs. Price was found in an abandoned coal mine shaft near here Monday, while the body of her husband was found in a field near DuBois, Washington County, February 5.

Indictments against Charles Birger, gang leader and four of his henchmen, were returned by the Washington county grand jury at Nashville Saturday on the testimony of Art Newman, a former Birger lieutenant, that Price first was shot at Birger's "Shady Rest" rendezvous in Williamson county, but finally killed in the field where his body was found.

Newman, who is now in jail at Belleville, will not appear before the grand jury here, Boswell said.

English mutton chops are cut about two inches thick. They can be pan broiled or broiled under or over the broiler heat.

Casserole of Spring Vegetables
Three tablespoons butter, 1 small head lettuce, 2 cups new peas, bunch new carrots, 1 bunch asparagus, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-5 teaspoon pepper, 1 1-2 cups chicken stock.

Melt butter in casserole. Add lettuce trimmed and cut in thin slices. Stir with a fork until thoroughly blended with butter. Add peas, carrots scraped and cut in strips and asparagus cut in inch lengths. Season with salt, sugar and pepper and add chicken stock. Cover and cook in a moderate oven for one hour.

If the stock is heated to the boiling point before using, the dish will cook in less time.

The WOMAN'S DAY by AILENE SUMNER

This busy world! One after another our formalities topple. Etiquet with a capital finally reluctantly consented to our writing our social letters by typewriter and to issuing invitations over the telephone. Even those in high places of earth are getting off their perch. "Empress" Hermine, second wife of erstwhile Kaiser William of Germany, now sends a simple invitation which, translated, says, "Empress and Queen Hermine requests."

In the pompous days of the Empire it took at least 500 words to issue an invitation in the name of the Kaiser and Kaiserin. Sometimes one wonders what women of the world are doing with all their saved time.

THE MRS. COED
Some college faculties forbid students marrying while in school. And if they can't stop the marrying, they can and do stop them from going to school! It may interest these faculties and all married students to learn that the deans of the Universities of Illinois, Wisconsin, Chicago and Northwestern have done research on the subject which proves that the scholarship of students improves after marriage.

H. C. OF ILLNESS
The high cost of being sick has been given a wallop in Rome, capital of Mussolini. Physicians have been urged, if not ordered, by Mussolini himself, to cut their prices. If Mussolini would just come over here and do that one job alone, the mass of middle-class Americans would owe him an irreparable debt! "Illness and its attendant cost is doing more to undermine the American home today than any other factor," a social worker said not long ago. The rich can afford to be sick. So can the "charity poor." But the middle-class who insist on paying their own bills cannot be. The cost of illness is out of all proportion to the average income. Mussolini knew it and did something. We know it here but nothing is done.

pay him $250 a month companion fees. The agreement stipulated that in case of a divorce the fee was to drop to $125. Seems queer that any wife could value the companionship of a mere husband so high as $250 a month. Judging by the way married people act, the last companionship in the world which they desire is that of the better half!

WORKING WIVES
"Woman has broken into business. She has joined the ranks of the male wage slave, and by competition dragged down the wage scale until now both of the family must work in order to buy a decent living."

This paragraph by a male writer arrested my attention a few minutes ago. I hadn't been thinking in that direction at all, and almost he persuaded me that he may be right. I've been championing married women who work outside the home with the argument that they do it not from choice but from necessity in this day when liver sells for 40 cents a pound. But perhaps by working they have brought down the male wage—and yet, when did men ever make as much wage as they are doing right now? No, that argument's not so good at that, even granting that $50 today is only about $25 of 15 years ago.

THE CONQUERING HERO SHOULD LIVE—
By Olive Roberts Barton
I simply must write "Charles Lindbergh" again.

There's about the sweetest story America ever told and I cannot keep quiet. Do you know what he said when he landed—too tired to get out of his machine or whatever the vernacular is for airplane. He didn't say, "So this is Paris!"

He said, "I'm Charles Lindbergh!" He said it himself in a strange count, knowing that the whole world was waiting for him!

Another thing! He had a couple of letters in his pocket from friends to two or three people over there—"go he'd know somebody when he got there!" Did you ever?

And one of the first things he asked was "If there was any place he could get a check cashed, so he could buy himself a suit of clothes that he might go about a little."

I think he went over the ocean on the prayers of American mothers. His modesty and courage need no more encomium from me. My little whistle would not be heard among the sirens anyway.

But there is one thing I am going to say and I wish that I could put on an electric sign on Broadway so that the world might read.

Every dangerous stunt known to aviation is going to be offered that boy—may thrust upon him. And talking his own life too lightly and not wishing to offend, he'll try them all, and once too often, he has earned his right to rest, and a long life of happiness. Why can't we let it go at that?

In humanity's name cannot something be done to stop those who exploit human life as ruthlessly as the Romans turned Christians into an arena of lions. At that I'd say that the Christians had the best chance when it comes to trusting one's life to a gasoline engine and a pair of parchment wings in midair.

Pretty Church Wedding Solemnized

A pretty church wedding ceremony was solemnized at the St. Paul's Lutheran church at Dixon, Sunday morning, June 5th at 8 o'clock. The event was the marriage of Miss Mary Melhusen, daughter of Mrs. Anna Melhusen, to L. G. Santelman, of Dixon, son of Fred Santelman, Rev. L. W. Walter read the ceremony, the ring service being used. Miss Edna, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Elmer Santelman, of Chicago, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. Miss Marie Westphal of Chicago, was flower girl.

The bride was beautifully attired in a charming gown of white satin faced canton crepe, with silver lace and a white silk lace veil. She carried a beautiful bouquet of brides roses.

The bridesmaid was beautifully attired in orchid taffeta with hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The little flower girl was dressed in pink and tan imported voile over a slip and carried a bouquet of tea roses.

Guy Shippee, Harvey Melhusen, and Glenn Melhusen of Ashton, served as ushers.

Those attending were the immediate relatives. At nine o'clock a three course wedding breakfast was served at Assembly Park hotel.

After congratulations were received, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Santelman departed for a tour in central Wisconsin and eastern Illinois. The bride's traveling costume was a blue georgette gown with reindeer tan coat, hat, and slippers.

The couple on their return from their wedding trip will reside in their beautiful new home in North Dixon. The many friends and relatives wish them happiness and prosperity in their future life.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. O'Kane of Hazelhurst, Tuesday, at high noon, when their daughter, Mildred, became the bride of John Davis of Polo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey D. Davis.

To the strains of the Stabler Wedding March, played by Mrs. William Ahrens, the bridal party assumed their places in the archway of the parlor, under a large white bell. Rev.

THE NATION THINKS AS ONE.

This nation, perhaps this continent, was thinking as one, with President Coolidge as its spokesman, when Colonel Lindbergh was received at Washington.

Rarely do such events occur. The assassination of McKinley, the death of Harding united the nation in sorrow. Signing of the armistice sent us all awestruck, but even then individual thoughts may not have been in time. The address of President Coolidge in welcoming Lindbergh was a simple recitation of the thoughts of a whole country.

Designation of the flyer as a messenger of peace and good will who had broken down another barrier of time and space and brought two great peoples into closer communion, was a happy description of a hero and a situation.

"The absence of self-acclaim, the refusal to become commercialized has endeared him to everyone," were the words of a nation, not the formal reception by an officer of the nation. "He has returned unspoiled," Seldom does one dare say that, even though it be true. It was the voice of the nation.

"Particularly has it been delightful to have him refer to his airplane as somehow possessing a personality and being equally entitled to credit with himself." If Lindbergh or a press agent had tried to think of some trick expression that would catch the heart of the American people, he could not have done better than he did in his spontaneous reference to himself and his plane as "we." It touched the president of the United States as it touched every reader of the news of the moment.

"A colonel of our republic, a conqueror of the air and strengthen of the ties which bind us to our sister nations across the sea, and as president of the United States, I bestow the Distinguished Flying Cross as a symbol of appreciation for what he is and what he has done, upon Col. Charles A. Lindbergh."

And we do not know yet, what all he has done.

HERRICK ANALYZES BOLSHIEVISM.

In his memorial address in an American cemetery in France, Ambassador Herrick interpreted the attitude of the United States toward bolshevism. He said that the system thus far seems to the world more tyrannical and oppressive than any preceding despotism, and added:

"A diseased democracy may be as grave a peril as the maddest king, an insane nation worse than Nero!"

With reference to the attitude of the United States he said:

"We have no thought of attacking the soviet regime in Russia; what it does on its own 'reservation' is its own affair. But we do object, with all the earnestness of a self-respecting nation, and quite regardless of material considerations, to give its leaders the means and opportunity of poisoning us. We intend to protect our country from bolshevism as our ancestors defended it against tyranny, and the fact that a government secretly sends against us the germs of a loathsome malady instead of openly dispatching armies does not make the invasion less felonious or alter our duty to repel it. "The brave men who lie in these graves, by the sacrifice of their precious lives, helped to save their country from a conquering despotism; then let us here resolve that it shall not now be rotted by a deliberately spread disease."

We are not bent upon any political reformation of Russia. That nation must work out its own salvation, though the process may be bloody. If bolshevism furnishes the only means by which it can come out from under monarchy, and if bolshevism may be expected to flourish there. Our government will not interfere. Our only demand, and it is a demand, is that Russia shall not interfere with our government.

BRITAIN'S 3.4 PERCENT.

Russian trade has been held out as bait for countries to recognize the soviet government. Great Britain was trying to resume its position in world trade, lost during the World war. The British opened the door to Russia as part of this activity.

It is related now that before the war Russia's trade amounted to a little less than 3.5 percent of the world's commerce. Now German experts who have studied Russian condition assert that in the peak year of sovietism it has reached only three-tenths of 1 percent of the trade of the world.

At this peak Russian trade with Great Britain formed only 3.4 percent of the British world trade. The British now are enabled to make an estimate of the value of the 3.4 percent of their trade.

It cost them too much.

When Pilot Chamebrlin landed in Germany his most pleasant sensation was the taste of German beer, he said. Maybe after all the trip was a bar fly.

A special session of Congress is to be called in autumn. Maybe they're going to build more warships to bring back non-stop flyers.

There are 8,000,000 pianos out of tune in this country, it was revealed at a Chicago music trades convention. These optimistic gentlemen are always making us revise our figures.

A hat in the ring sometimes results from a ring in the hat.

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

Wee Coppy said, "I guess you're right. I must swim back to land ere night, but first I'd like to look around and see what I can see. There must be some strange fish down here. It sorta fills me up with fear. But, if we walk together we'll be safe as we can be."

Then Scouty shouted, "Let's move fast. I don't know how long this will last. King Roar may turn up suddenly and send us out of here." So off they walked, along the sand and Coppy thought it very grand. "Course now and then it scared him when some queer fish swam too near. They picked up shells of every size that seemed to sparkle in their eyes. "I'd like to take some up to shore," said Coppy, with a grin. "Oh, what's the use?" wee Scouty cried. "As soon as you'd get them inside, they'd promptly lose their luster and you'd likely throw them in."

By this time Coppy seemed tired out. Said he, "I guess I'll turn about and swim up where the others are. What news I'll have to bring!" "All right," said Scouty, "tell the bunch I'll be back soon. I have a hunch that I'll see the king."

But, just as Coppy started out, he heard his old friend Scouty shout, "Look out! A monstrous octopus is coming after you. You'd better swim to beat the band or in its clutches you will land." Then Coppy turned and looked real quick, and found that it was true.

"My goodness, what will happen now? He surely must be saved somehow," said Scouty, as the octopus came very near. Then Scouty grabbed the octopus, which started in to make a fuss, and as they battled Coppy swam away, quite filled with fear.

(Scouty is captured by the octopus in the next story.)

CHAPTER LXI

Louie was blind. Slight of stature, a pitiful figure, he'd feel his way with a stick along the road to the square where the Y. M. C. A. tent was located in Mont-les-Vignoble in those after-the-armistice days of 1918. When he reached the door some soldier would take him in charge and lead him to a chair in front of the tiny campaign organ that was used for church services.

And there Louie would sit, hour after hour, pumping diligently and playing tunes that he made up as he went along. His delicate ears actuated the movements of his slender fingers and while his harmonies were sometimes questionable, they were tolerated in sympathy. And when the infantry outfits lined up late in the afternoon for "Retreat," he followed the buglers—precisely. His "To the Colors" never could be criticized.

He Was Forgotten

Late in January, 1919, the area from Charnes-la-Cote to Blenod-les-Toul was evacuated. Orders were received at Mont-les-Vignoble. The outfits were to move out on a Tuesday. On Monday, Louie played as usual. After he had accompanied the buglers at "Retreat" an appeal was made by a group of soldiers to the "Y" secretary that he present the organ to Louie. But the secretary was accountable for all his equipment. The organ had to be turned in. "The soldiers talked of stealing it. But in the excitement of leaving for home, the matter and Louie were quickly forgotten.

Until recently no American soldier has ever visited Blenod-les-Toul. But, the other day, one went back. He found a marble monument where the "Y" tent had been located. He saw some crows drinking at the village fountain and old women gossiping in the warm sun. He remembered Louie. Louie's house was pointed out. The visitor opened the front door and walked along the stone-flagged hall to a second door. The room was dark except for a tiny light admitted through a tiny window. But in the gloom the figure of Louie could be seen. He was seated in a chair near the fireplace.

The soldier could speak little French, but he greeted Louie warmly. Louie was pleased. In a high-pitched voice he spoke feelingly of his "bon camarades"—the Americans. He recalled many phrases they had taught him.

And then—and his face lighted up with a smile that could be seen even in the semi-darkness—he asked: "And the organ?"

"What did they do with the organ?"

Louie, the blind man of Mont-les-Vignoble, has not forgotten. And many of the ex-doughboys who used to hang around that Y-tent still remember the picture of happiness he presented when he fingered the little instrument and stared into utter darkness with his sightless eyes.

Maybe one of those wheezy campaign organs still exists. Maybe some Legionaire can take one over next September. The deed would be worth while.

SAINT and SINNER

There was an actual physical wrench, as if her body were being torn in two, when Faith dropped her arms and let Bob go to bring the family to the new house in his car. She wanted to run after him, arms spread, a wild cry of protest on her lips, begging him to stay yet a little while. But she stood with her hand pressed against her mouth to keep back that cry, on the steps of the porch. The other hand waved to him as he rolled down the driveway to the street. He blew her a kiss shamelessly, regardless of neighbors who might be watching from behind curtains.

She knew that a phase of her love life had been lived and had passed. She could never know such perfect happiness again. Such a little time—three days! She flung herself upon the couch—their couch where they had read poetry and talked an even more beautiful poetry of their own, but which would not be the family's couch as much as hers—and wept in a frenzy of uncontrollable grief and foreboding.

But when the family arrived at last, she was singing in the kitchen, a great yellow bowl of bubbly waffle batter ready for the smoking hot electric waffle iron. The table, that had been set for two for three wonderful days, was now ready for five people.

She heard her father's voice, forcedly hearty—the voice of an old man who believes, bitterly, that he must earn his way by being genial—and she ran out of the kitchen to greet him, a lump of pity for him in her throat.

"Well, well, well! How's the bride?" He held out a hand, embarrassment making his voice loud. Then he hurried on: "What's that I smell? Fried chicken, as I live! Your Aunt Hattie is a good cook, honey, but she can't touch you with a ten-foot pole. Well, we're here, and I hope we ain't intruding."

As she kissed him, protesting that he could never be in the way, her heart was crying, "Where's Bob?"

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

BY AHERNS

Where's Cherry?

"Bob's letting her drive the car into the garage," Joy pointed. "She's been on a high horse ever since you left, Faith. Aunt Hattie simply bawled her out today for being so cross and uppity. But I guess she feels better now. She was laughing to beat the band when she bumped the garage door. If I'd been Bob I'd told her to pay attention to what she was doing—scrapping the paint on that new door!" she nodded severely. "But he just laughed at her. He looks like he's so happy he could bust, and—" she drew back and gazed wonderingly at her sister's face—"so do you! Is it nice being married, Faith? Have you found out why they call it a honeymoon?"

"Yes, honey," Faith laughed, a blush dyeing her neck and cheeks and brow. "It's wonderful being married—to Bob! And I've found out why they call it a honeymoon, but it's a secret that every bride has to find out for herself. You'll know when you've been married to a man like Bob. Hungry, infant?"

"Just starved," Joy was emphatic. "Aunt Hattie gave us a boiled dinner every day, and nasty old bread pudding for dessert. Without any raisins," she added, in deep disgust. "What you got for dessert, Faith?"

Faith was about to return to the kitchen and her waffle iron when Bob and Cherry came into the dining room, Cherry with her right hand entwined in Bob's left, her lovely little face flushed with laughter. Bob was laughing, too, his blue eyes twinkling, his teeth gleaming between his upturned lips. Faith, arrested by a pang of jealousy which she would have died rather than acknowledge, hesitated a moment before she went toward her sister.

"Hello, Faith, darling!" Cherry sang out, reaching for one of Faith's hands without releasing Bob's. "I've just been teasing this husband of yours unmercifully, but he's told me he'll lock me in my room without any supper if I tease you. What a heavenly blush that is you're wearing! There ought to be a rouge called 'Bride's Blush.' A lot of hard-boiled flappers would find it a boon. But isn't she the most naive thing you ever saw, Bob? She's actually shocked at me!"

Faith's heart plunged sickeningly and then seemed to stand still. For the first time in her life she hated Cherry. She wanted to tear that clinging little hand from Bob's. And he didn't have to let her stand there swinging his hand, as if she were his wife—

TOMORROW: Cherry's jealousy of Faith and Bob takes a strange turn.

COOK MUST WAIT ACTION OF HIGH COURT ON PLEAS

His Parole from Federal Prison Has Been Held Illegal

New Orleans, La., June 15.—(AP)—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, explorer and oil promoter, must look to the supreme court or the U. S. Parole Board for his release from the Leavenworth prison as a result of a decision handed down here in Fifth District U. S. Court of appeals. The decision said, in effect that Federal Judge Wilson at Fort Worth was wrong when he ordered the release of Dr. Cook on a five year probation period and that the probation act of 1925 does not affect the existing statutes regarding the release of the prisoner.

The probation act "cannot properly be given the effect of changing the law which was in existence at the time it was passed except so as the language used discloses an intention to make a change," the opinion said.

Tangle is Result.
The opinion is expected to straighten out a tangle created by a number of applications for release under the probation act filed in various parts of the country since the Cook application was filed.

Dr. Cook was convicted on fraud charges in November, 1923, and sentenced to 14 years in prison and to pay a fine of $12,000.

The Probation Act of March 4, 1925, described by some judges as one of the most far reaching as regards powers of the federal judiciary ever passed by Congress, and characterized by Judge James G. Wilson, Fort Worth, as giving the trial judge "in some respects power not enjoyed by the President of the United States," is scheduled to take its form and perhaps to meet its death largely through the instrumentality of Dr. Cook.

Probation Granted.
Last February 8, Dr. Cook filed application in the United States district court here for probation, which was granted March 17 by Judge Wilson who also suspended payment of the $12,000 fine. Dr. Cook was not released, however, for immediately the Department of Justice, government attorneys, attorneys for Dr. Cook, and Judge Wilson agreed to make the case a test of the Probation Act before the supreme court in order to settle a wide variety of controversial points. It was agreed that Dr. Cook would remain in the penitentiary until the supreme court had passed on the case.

Dr. Cook's case was seized upon because it encompassed most of the principal points over which federal judges in eight notable cases have disagreed. These points are: Whether one convicted before enactment of the Probation Act is eligible for probation; whether one who has begun service of a sentence is eligible for probation; whether one may apply for probation after the term of court at which he was sentenced has expired.

Govt. Contention.
In opposing Dr. Cook's application before Judge Wilson, the government argued solely that the court was without jurisdiction because Dr. Cook had been convicted November 21, 1923, began service on that date, and had filed application for probation February 8, 1927.

When it applied for writ of error to overthrow the Wilson order at the fifth circuit court of appeals, New Orleans, in April this year, however, the government advanced the same arguments, but attacked the constitutionality of the law in addition, the first time this has been done in connection with the Probation Act.

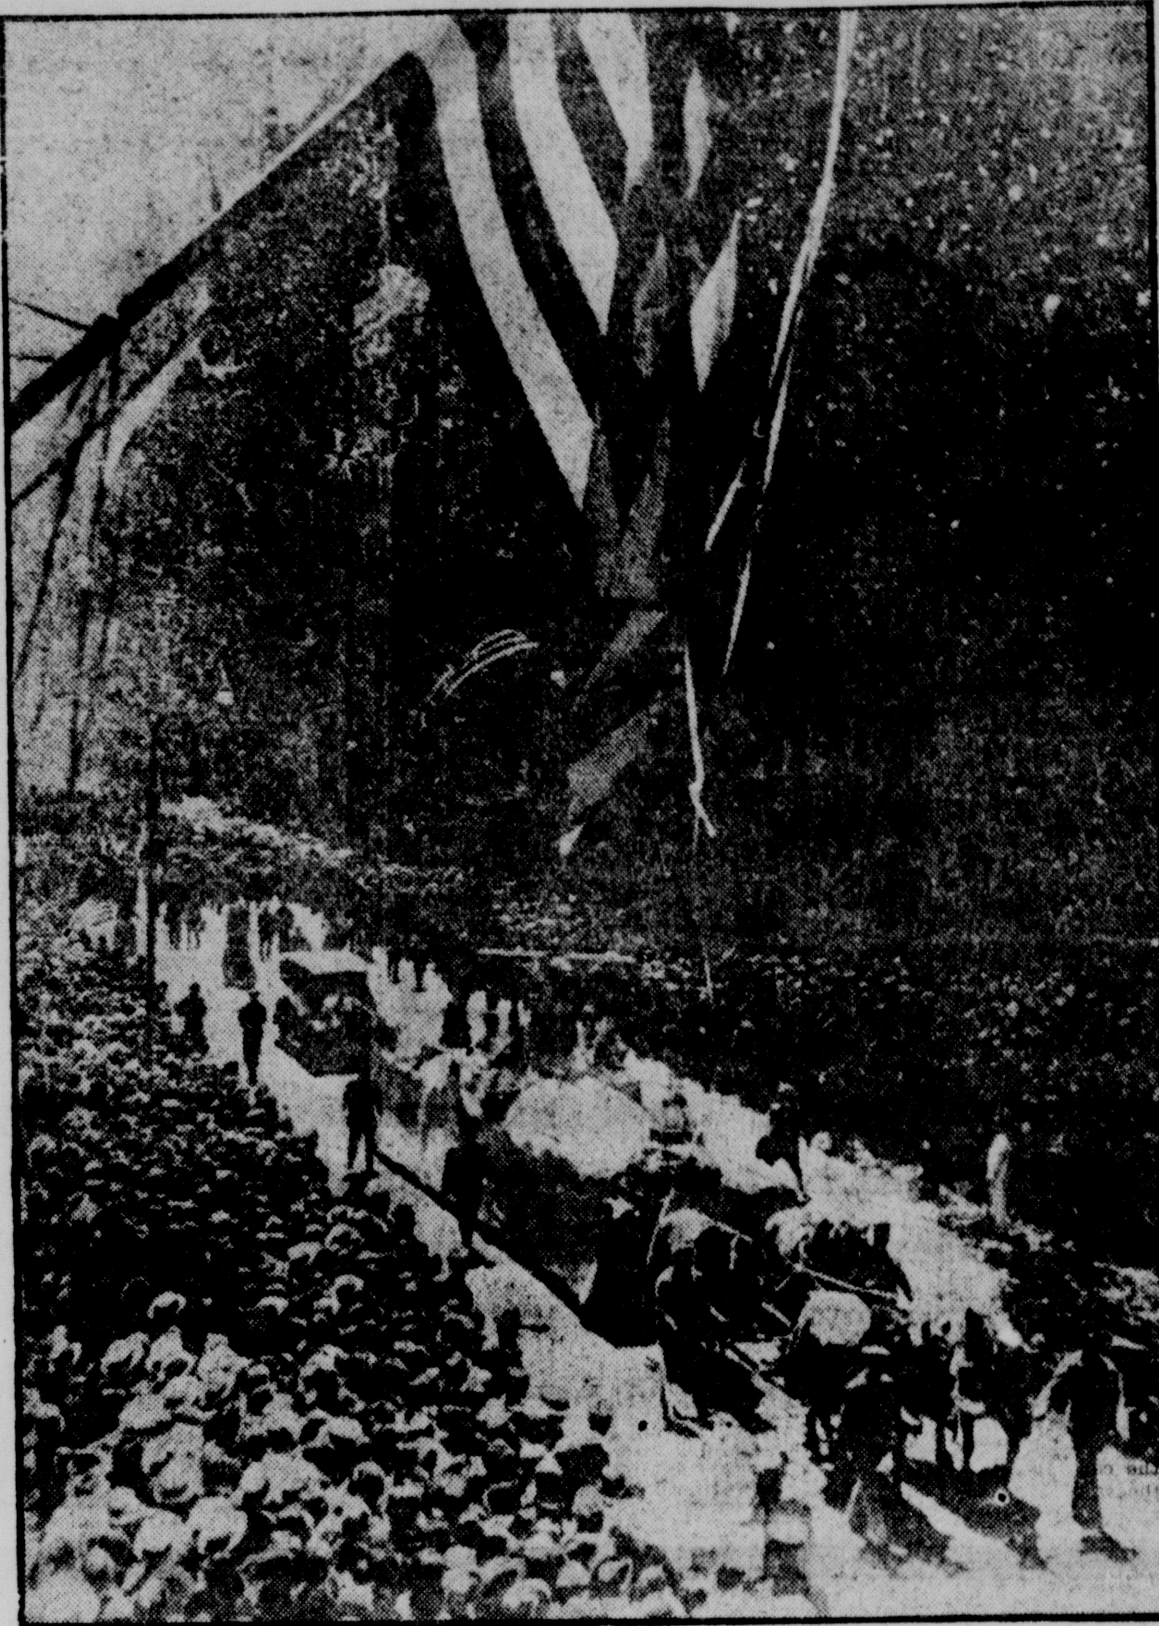

The government attacked the constitutionality of the act on the ground:

That the Act encroaches on the pardoning power reserved by the Constitution to the President.

That the Act infringes on the President's exclusive power under the Constitution to remit fines and penalties. (Reference here was to the suspension of the $12,000 fine assessed against Dr. Cook).

That the Act encroaches on other powers in permitting judges to cancel debts and obligations to the United

LINDBERGH IS GIVEN GOTHAM'S GREETING

The most tumultuous welcome New York ever gave any man—that's the way the metropolis welcome to Charles Lindbergh was described by those who saw it. Here is a glimpse of it—a look into the canyon of lower Broadway as the young flyer rode up to receive the city's official greeting. Lindbergh is in the limousine behind the float; note how the ticker tape and torn paper, thrown from windows in the towering office buildings, make the air look as if there was a blinding snowstorm. It took 8000 police to maintain order in lower New York while this parade was in progress.

Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served after the business sessions. The floor was then cleared for dancing.

MANY FEATURES AT REUNION OF LEGION AT POLO

Thirteenth District Executive Men Expect Big Time Saturday

A half dozen big features, Kable's 129th Infantry band, first prize winner in the Illinois National Guard and favorite at the WOC broadcasting station in Davenport, Ferra C. Watkins, state Legion commander, Sterling's 3rd prize drum corps, Lanark's excellent high school band, a monster parade in the afternoon and a big banquet and dance at night are getting the interest of Legionnaires and Auxiliary women of this vicinity.

Members of Post No. 12 of Dixon are making big plans to have a live delegation ready for business June 18. Commander Fallstrom is asking all members of the post to see him right away for further particulars. A trip to this district meeting will mean new life to the local post for the boys will be able to get a vision of what the Legion really means in its bigger sphere.

June 18th is the day and 10 a. m. is the zero hour for the former service men who, bound together with a common bond in war, are now even more united in peace. All the Legion luminaries from Watkins on down to Ben Kreider, of Sterling, and George O'Brien, of Rochelle, are boosting for the first annual 13th district convention. And Polo will be boosting as hard for the next convention city as the 13th district cities and towns are helping this first convention.

Business sessions will be held at 10 a. m. and every one of the 37 posts in the district is expected to send delegates for this meeting. Many posts have already chosen their official delegates, as the business to be handled is very important.

Membership is expected to receive a boost as Kreider's district, at the tail-end of the membership parade last fall, is now leading the procession, with prospects of being in line at the state convention in Joliet early this fall. Whitehead county, home of Kreider, is bidding strong for first honors at the Polo meeting with Stephenson, Lee, Carroll and Jodavies going strong.

This is the first American Legion convention available to former service men of the 13th district since the war and post commanders are working hard to have their outfits well represented when roll is called in Polo, June 18.

ILLINOIS PREXY IN ADDRESS TO ITS GRADUATES

Says Moral Leadership of World is Duty of United States

Urbana-Champaign, Ill., June 15.—(AP)—Moral leadership of the world should be the aim of the United States, David Kinley, president of the University of Illinois told members of the graduating class of the University this morning. He pointed out the aims that "we, as a people should strive for in our relations with the rest of the world."

"We should first exert every influence for the promotion of peace," President Kinley said. "A second aim is insistence on the right of each nation to manage its own affairs. A third is the right of our nationals to fair treatment in foreign countries under their laws. A fourth is the use of arbitration of the settlement of differences."

"Although we have decided thus far not to join either the League or the Court, it is still open to us to promote world peace through arbitration."

Regarding treaties in general, President Kinley said that they cannot be regarded as settling anything for all time but that their sacredness, as the world grows older, is becoming greater in public opinion.

Travel by air and shipment of merchandise by air is increasing in volume steadily, as indicated by the rapid growth of the air mail service. Cities which have realized this and have already made provisions for landing fields and air ports are the cities which will loom large on the air maps of the future.

How American cities can make the most of their air assets is indicated by the air-minded activities of Peoria. The landing field used in Peoria for the operation of mail planes for the first few months was a temporary one—leased by the Association of Commerce until such time as a permanent satisfactory field could be secured and properly equipped.

Then they secured an eighty-acre tract. This was equipped and lighted with a two-million candle power beacon light, boundary lights and a battery of flood lights to illumine the ground when the pilots land at night. The Department of Commerce has lighted the Illinois highway between Chicago and St. Louis by way of Springfield and Peoria, placing 24 beacon lights at an average distance of ten miles apart. An emergency field has been leased in the vicinity of each one of these beacon lights, making night flying safe for pilots.

For the first time since the war Germany is to be represented in the Gordon Bennett Cup race in the United States this year.

FROM AMERICA TO GERMANY BY PLANE!

Camera and Pen Tell Story of Record Flight of Chamberlin and Levine—A new Record—3970 Miles in 46 Hours and 30 Minutes

Charles A. Levine, millionaire backer of the Columbia's hop from New York to Europe, gave his wife and friends the surprise of their lives when he jumped into the plane as it was taking off and made the trip himself. Prior to his trans-Atlantic flight Levine had been "in the air" only a few hours in his whole life.

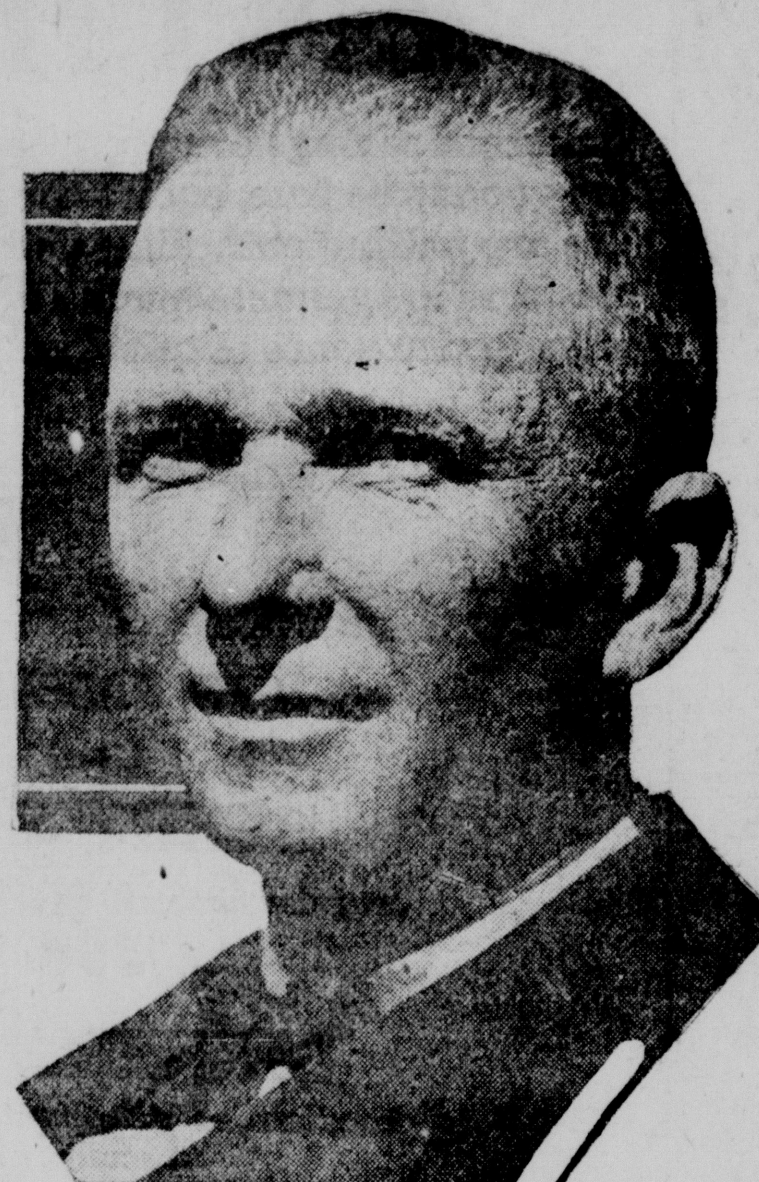

While Clarence D. Chamberlin was flying across the Atlantic, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Chamberlin were praying for him at their home in Denison, Ia.

President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany (above) and Jacob Gould Schurman, new United States ambassador to Germany, welcomed the flyers to Berlin.

Here is Pilot Clarence D. Chamberlin, first man to fly an airplane from New York to Germany. He inherited his pioneering bent from his father, E. C. Chamberlin of Denison, Ia., who was the first man in that town to own an automobile. Clarence, as a freckled youngster, got his first mechanical experience tinkering with the car.

Former Canton Chief Indicted

Former Chief of Police Lenzel of Canton, O., is the fifth man to be indicted in connection with the murder of Don Mellett, crusading editor. Lenzel is shown shielding his face as he was being taken up the jail steps by Sheriff Ed Gibson. Below is a mosaic of the former chief, whose arrest followed the story told by Floyd Breitenberger, former detective. Pat McDermott, Ben Dodner and Streitenberger have been sentenced to life imprisonment, while Louis Mazer, who was the first to "confess," awaits trial.

Two Bachelors—Very Eligible

Here are two young royal young men, representing England and America, and the most eligible bachelors it would be possible to name just now—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, King of the Air, and His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales. Lindbergh (left) appears a little different from the haggard boy who crawled from his historic plane in Paris. The picture was taken at the royal reception given Lindbergh in London.

Aristo - democratic

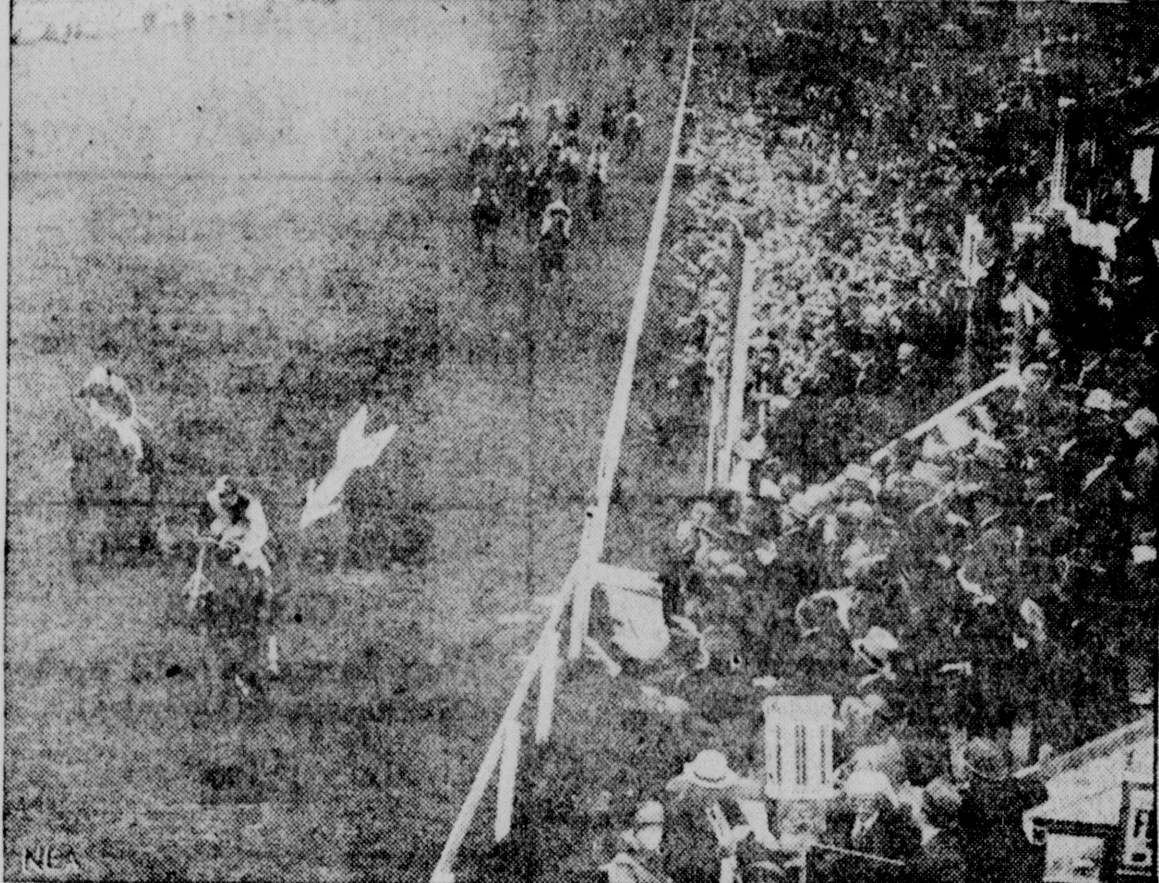

At the Kennel Club in New York the pedigree Irish terrier of H. Gordon Duval, president of the high-hat Park Avenue Association, is registered as "Sir Michael Gordon." But to those who frequently meet him strolling along Park Avenue in linen collar, bow tie and wrist watch, he's just plain "Mickey."

No Need of Man on the Farm

Once the first furrow is plowed under man's guidance, the invention of F. L. Zylbach of Grandisland, Neb., will guide the tractor automatically over the rest of the field to plow the remaining rows. If the tractor guide wheel gets out of the last furrow which guides it, the automatic device stops the machine. Zylbach sees in his invention, which he shows in this photo, more freedom for the farmer.

The Historic British Derby—Barrier to Wire

Rare action photos of the start and finish of the annual British derby at Epsom Downs. Above, you see the field springing away as the barrier is lifted. "Call Boy," the winner, is No. 9. Below, you see "Call Boy," Elliott up, (arrow) finishing the race a fast winner, hotly pressed by "Hot Night." Captain Charles A. Lindbergh was one of the spectators, but he said the thrilling race was tame by comparison to trans-Atlantic flights and failed to enthuse him.

Kiwanis Chief

Ralph A. Amerman of Scranton, Pa., president of Kiwanis International, will preside at the business sessions of the organization when it convenes in Memphis, Tenn., June 6-9.

Are They Collies, or Wolves?

What will these four youngsters grow up to be? Mother, who stands by while they have their dinner, is a wolf, captured two years ago on a farm near Milton, Wis. Their father is of the Collie breed, a domestic pet for generations.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS CANZONERI TAKES UP TRAINING FOR BUD TAYLOR BOUT

New York Whirlwind is Now in Chicago to Finish Work

Chicago, Ill., June 15—Tony Canzoneri, challenger for the world's bantamweight championship, arrived here this morning on the Century from New York City, to finish training for his title fight with Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., scheduled for Wrigley Field, Thursday night, June 23rd.

Canzoneri has been doing light work in New York for a couple of weeks and is ready for the intensive stuff, which will consist mostly of daily boxing sessions with his sparring partners.

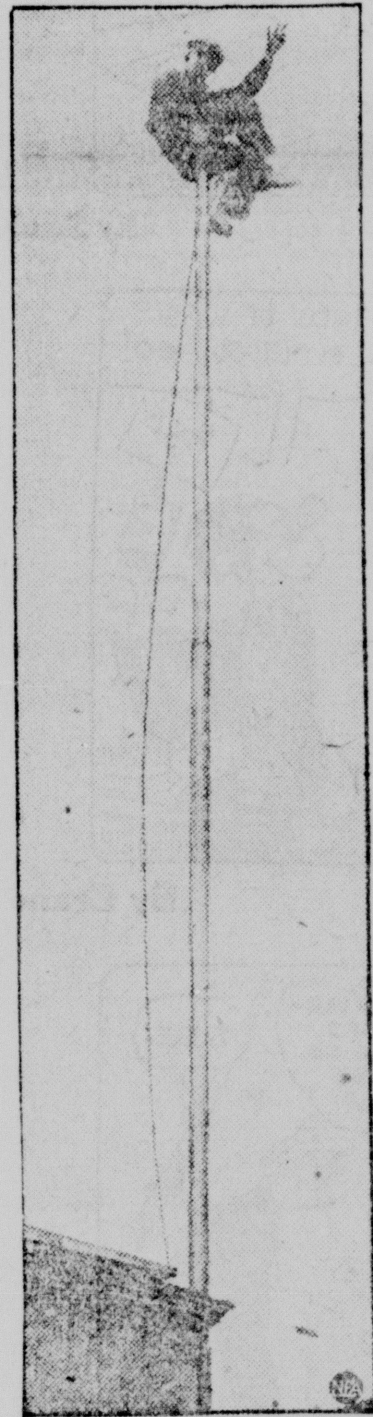

The little Italian is going to face Taylor with plenty of ring-side support as his previous battle with the champion last winter proved to everybody present that he is the most serious menace to the title now held by the "Blond Terrier" from Terre Haute.

Bud Taylor has been working here for some time and is right at the top of his form. Bud met Chick Sugars at Los Angeles, May 31st and did something that isn't being done in boxing circles—knocked out the Massachusetts colored star.

Reports from California stated that Taylor never looked better than he did against Sugars and indicated that the champion is all ready to give Tony Canzoneri a real fistic lesson when they face each other on the twenty-third.

Fernandez, sensational Filipino invader, will make his first American appearance on the semi-windup when he meets Abe Attell Goldstein of New York, former bantamweight champion.

Modern Monk

In the old days monks used to do penance by spending long periods atop pillars. Now comes Alvin ("Shipwreck") Kelly with an attempt to spend eight days aloft on a flag pole at Newark, N. J., just for the fun of an endurance test. Here he is on his 15-foot perch, with radiophones on his ears to while away the time.

"See You In Paris"

So says Jay Ward, young vaudeville star, to Clarence Chamberlin, New York-to-Paris pilot, as they examine the trans-oceanic Wright-Bellanca monoplane "Columbia" at Curtiss Field, Long Island. Jay's going over with the Legion and Chamberlin hopes to hop across with Lloyd Ber-taud in the "Columbia."

GOSSIP OF SMALL TOWN CAUSED GA. WOMAN'S BEATING

K. K. K. is Blamed for Attack: Head of Klan's Denial

Toccoa, Ga., June 15—(AP)—Small town gossip, thought to have originated with an "old man" in the community, finally reaped 82 blows across a woman's bare back. The story Mrs. Ansley Bowers told of an attack on her and her 15 year old son has led to the arrest of four men and to a charge laid at the door of the Ku Klux Klan.

From a hospital bed, Mrs. Bowers said that twelve men in automobile late last Sunday night, forced her to accompany them to a lonely road and then beat her four times. Her son Floyd was beaten also.

"These men are all members of the Ku Klux Klan; there is no doubt about it," Mrs. Bowers declared.

Klan Pledges Aid
Nathan B. Forrest, grand dragon of the Ku Klux in Georgia, replied to Mrs. Bowers' assertion. He said: "If any member of the Klan took part in the Toccoa flogging, the Klan will do its utmost to send him to the state penitentiary."

Elmer Clark and Charles Thomas surrendered yesterday. Both denied the charge.

The two others arrested were W. J. Acree, principal of a high school, and T. R. Lowery, sub-foreman of a furniture factory. All four waived preliminary hearing. A grand jury to consider the charges is to be convened July 4.

Hospital physicians said that the lower part of Mrs. Bowers' body was almost flayed.

Three other persons were beaten recently here, but not until the attack on Mrs. Bowers became generally known did the victims disclose details of their misfortune. Police have four distinct whippings as a basis for their investigation. "Stories," "gossip" and "insinuations," are thought by the authorities as a basis to have led to each attack.

Legislators Resume

Ring Inquiry Today

Springfield, Ill., June 15—(AP)—Members of the state legislative committee who hold the fate of wrestling and perhaps boxing too, in their hands, will hear more witnesses today in their investigation of the ring situation in Illinois.

Boxing and those connected with it, are to be the main topics in today's sessions and the state athletic commission has promised a chance to reply to some of the criticism made by previous witnesses.

A boxing card had to be put over a day when the legislators decided to transfer their inquiry from Chicago to Springfield. The card included a match between Sid Barbarian of Detroit and Fred Mueller of Buffalo and Mike Dundee of Rock Island vs King Tut of Minneapolis. The commission advanced it a day because none could be at the ringside to take charge.

Irish Hearts

"IRISH HEARTS," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Sheila Kildare and her father emigrate to America from Kilmacaul, Ireland. They have followed Emmett Murtough, to whom Sheila is betrothed. Neither Murtough nor Kildare will hold steady jobs and Sheila goes to work as a waitress. She makes friends with the family of Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer, whose kindness interests her. Murtough joins a bootlegging gang and becomes involved with a cabaret girl. Rory wins his fight with Campeau. The purse is $2,500.

Sheila did not know that in America she was more than four million young men became excellent boxers in the training camps and that the ring when man pits strength and skill and quickness of limb and eye against the same even qualities of another man that it is no longer hideous but a brave sight. Sheila had shuddered as she mentally pictured the blood streaming over Rory's face and she recalled her curiosity and the repugnance she felt when first she noticed the shapeless ear which Rory wore modestly. A cauliflower ear is nothing to boast of, not even among fighters! She wondered before she fell asleep what Rory O'Shea would decide to do. Would he continue to try for the championship or would he start into business for himself with his winnings. Twenty-five hundred dollars! A fortune thought Sheila. In her ignorance she did not realize that Rory would not net more than $1500 when his manager had been paid and other expenses deducted. Devlin and Murtough had met early and the leisurely drive to Clocker's landing station had proved uneventful. They arrived well ahead of their schedule and there was more than an hour to wait. The driver for the truck and his guard had been sent down ahead by train and they were ready and waiting the hour to start.

"We got a lot of work ahead," remarked Simmons casually. "The old man's got a shipload out there and we're preparing to take care of $150,000 worth of stuff. Going to try to land it all in two nights, next Friday and Saturday. Then it will mean double time to get it to the warehouses in the city. There'll be hard driving to do then."

"Going to land all of it here? I should think it would be better to slip in some up at the place on the Sound and not take a chance with all of it in one spot."

"Well, I don't know what Mammie's idea is, but he gave us orders to get ready to store it all here beginning Friday night."

"Any leaks this time? Stevens' gang rapped Mammie hard the last time to say nothing of what happened to Evans and Williams, poor devils."

"You got yours too, didn't you," Simmons asked Murtough.

"Yes, but it didn't prove serious, laid up a few days that was all."

LOWDEN BOOM IS STARTED IN IOWA IN EARNEST TODAY

"Preliminary" to Main "Bout" Staged in Hawkeye State

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH, Iowa, From New York to Newfoundland coast.

No storm engulfed the plane; The air was clear, the day was bright. Without a drop of rain.

From sunny shores away he went— To tempt the mighty deep. No stimulants he used at all, To ward off rest or sleep.

The night came on, alone he sat. No friend was there to cheer. The great wide ocean rolled below, But what had he to fear?

His dauntless soul, his mother's prayers, Inspired him through the night. Be-set by fog, and rain, and sleet, He made his wondrous flight.

One hundred miles an hour he flew— His engine worked so well. His steady hand made no mistake— Earth's millions now can tell.

To ride the storm—ten thousand feet He plunged into the air, And victory came to crown the life Of one so brave, so clean and fair.

He saw the hills of Ireland, too, To cheer him on his way. The English Channel then he crossed On that immortal day.

Now Paris worships at his feet; The World is full of joy; His mother, too, is proud indeed Of her brave and manly boy.

A lesson now I'd like to teach Before life's work is done, To show our boys this timely hour— How victories may be won.

Charles Lindbergh does not use strong drink. He does not smoke or chew; Be wise as Charles—to win success— Will you? Will you? Will you? W. C. T. U.

These verses were composed by Edward W. Mills of Chicago, who many will remember having heard at the Christian church several years ago, giving his famous lecture on Anti-Narcotics, and several talks in the schools.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called Vilak has come to the quiet little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE MARRI, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave Vilak, learning that LYN-COLA NUNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, who are on horseback, and finally he and his companions come upon the child, unhurt and being cared for by a gang of railroad laborers in the charge of one CARLOS D'ALBEN-TARA.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He and Nunnally return that evening to reward D'Albentara and his men with some wine. Before they come away, Vilak, through a seemingly accidental fall, manages to get hold of a ring which he says he snatched from the finger of D'Albentara's half-breed foreman.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY CHAPTER XVII

"INCIDENTALLY I might add," Vilak said, "that the way things look now the usefulness of my esteemed relative, Mr. Riggs, the barber, is about over. Are you coming down to the shop with me?"

The old man nodded. Vilak sent the servants back with the cart. They turned into the highway. As they did so they saw an Indian staggering through the brush, obviously in the last stages of intoxication. He was constantly lifting to his mouth a tin cup which he refilled from a sort of crude canteen at his belt. As he walked he continually muttered an incomprehensible jargon. Nunnally recognized him as one of the Indians with the filed teeth who worked in the railroad gang. He zigzagged up the road in the direction of Vilak's house and Elise's fazenda.

Vilak looked after him a moment. "That fellow is just fit for getting into trouble," he said. He continued thoughtfully down the road trees ahead. Vilak halted. "Step softly as you can," he said to his companion.

They crept forward stealthily over the soil made into a veritable cushion by the leaf mould of centurias. As they went on they saw that the light was the light of a fire, around which two shadows were moving. They reached the edge of a small clearing and looked from behind the shelter of a tree.

Now they could see plainly the two shadows; they were Pasquale Branza of the patched cheek and the one-armed Detto Cicerone. On the ground lay a third man, the drunken Indian they had noticed going up the road. He was trussed with ropes like a wild beast just captured and made ready for shipment to some far off zoo. His arms were tied fast behind his back, his mouth was gagged with a piece of old shirt, undoubtedly to stifle cries such as they heard a few moments before.

His skinny bare legs were also lashed together and placed over a log so that the bony feet projected high in the air. It was at this extremity of their victim's body that the two Italians were standing, Pasquale keeping up a running conversation, consisting of Lee, Whiteside and Ogle counties, held their spring banquet at the Mahanberg Tavern Monday evening, at which time plates were served to fifty. After the banquet the men held their regular business meeting and the ladies were entertained at bridge.

from the old stone well to the narrow courtyard at the rear.

The old man followed, panting. For a quarter of a mile they booted along, now in forest so black that though the moon was shining clearly they could see nothing of the sky, now past a pool of dark, evil-smelling water, along whose borders sat huge bullfrogs chanting their hoarse and mournful refrain. They saw a light between the tall trees ahead. Vilak halted. "Step softly as you can," he said to his companion.

They crept forward stealthily over the soil made into a veritable cushion by the leaf mould of centurias. As they went on they saw that the light was the light of a fire, around which two shadows were moving. They reached the edge of a small clearing and looked from behind the shelter of a tree.

Now they could see plainly the two shadows; they were Pasquale Branza of the patched cheek and the one-armed Detto Cicerone. On the ground lay a third man, the drunken Indian they had noticed going up the road. He was trussed with ropes like a wild beast just captured and made ready for shipment to some far off zoo. His arms were tied fast behind his back, his mouth was gagged with a piece of old shirt, undoubtedly to stifle cries such as they heard a few moments before.

His skinny bare legs were also lashed together and placed over a log so that the bony feet projected high in the air. It was at this extremity of their victim's body that the two Italians were standing, Pasquale keeping up a running conversation, consisting of Lee, Whiteside and Ogle counties, held their spring banquet at the Mahanberg Tavern Monday evening, at which time plates were served to fifty. Apply the Paint

YOU'VE probably heard the above slogan many times, but have you ever realized that it takes superior paint and skilled craftsmen for the perfect job.

For either exterior or interior work we are at your service at all times. Considering the quality offered, you will agree with us that our prices are most reasonable.

Dust, soot, heat, cold and moisture—all contribute their share toward "sapping the life" out of the best woodwork, whether interior or exterior. And only the highest grade Paints and Varnishes will thwart those elements.

Keep in Trim!

Good Elimination Is Essential to Good Health.

THE kidneys are the blood filters. If they fail to function properly there is apt to be a retention of toxic poisons in the blood. A dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches, headaches, and dizziness are symptoms of this condition. Further evidence of improper kidney function is often found in burning or scanty passage of secretions. Each year more and more people are learning the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. Scarcely a nook or hamlet anywhere but has many enthusiastic users. Ask your neighbor!
